the classical disease. Thus, it is not surprising that the first cases of AIDS were reported in 1981, and the first deaths in 1982.

It is important to note that AIDS is not a disease, but rather a syndrome.

The term AIDS describes the presence of certain diseases in patients who have been diagnosed with HIV infection. These diseases are called

opportunistic infections.

These infections

are usually not seen in people who do not have

AIDS.

For example, if you have normal levels of CD4 cells in your body, you will not be sick with AIDS.

But if you have

low levels of CD4 cells in your body, you may be

sick with AIDS.

So, AIDS is not a disease, but rather a

syndrome.
